“ The spirit of flamenco ”

The three instruments

crafted by Jacky Craissac are a source of wonder under whose spell their creator was the first to fall.

Pounding or caressing out of the wood and metal all kinds of nuances, he is a magician of sound amazed at his own magic; an alchemist whose formulas take him into but half-suspected discoveries. And yet the artist, driven by an inquisitive jubilation, orchestrates as felicitously what he masters as what escapes him. He is the demiurge of a world the contours of which he seems to have just thrown together.

His profoundly rhythmic music espouses a richness of harmonics that his diverse techniques highlight, thus progressively disclosing the enticing volumes and continents of "Flamenca Inspiration".

One wishes the journey into the un-predictable and the unsubmissive were without end.
